

TEAM CONNECTIONS

With Marilyn & Sarah Stewart

*I*n the mind and spirit of children, there is no concept of limitations. You are a sponge in a world of possibilities and dreams. Children naturally have the “I can DO or BE anything” attitude. When does the time come we stop dreaming and choose to be practical or believe our reality is our fate? Our minds and beliefs were once larger than our physical form ... and now, it has become the opposite. Instead of reaching for the stars, are we merely attempting to survive and live up to our own (or someone else's) expectations?

I spent a lot of time as a child dreaming and imagining. From a young age, I discovered that my thoughts and imagination created my experiences. One of my favorite memories was when I was seven, our family went to Disneyland. As most children are, I was “awe struck” by the magic! I still remember watching Tinker Bell fly across the mid-night sky. It was real, not animated. This was an experience in my life that allowed me to see and dream the impossible. It also confirmed anything was possible. During our holiday, I decided I was going to some day work for Disney and become a Disney Imagineer.

I consider myself to be very blessed as I had a “picture perfect” childhood. I had loving, committed parents who always supported and encouraged me to develop my potential and express my creativity. I had extraordinary insight to see and create more than just “average”.

I was extensively involved in the performing arts. When it was realized I could naturally play piano by ear at the age of 4, I was immediately enrolled into lessons. With years of classical training, I achieved top marks in provincial competitions and examinations. At the age of 15, I completed my grade 8 Royal Conservatory of Music, qualifying me to teach.

My greatest inspiration came from my passion to dance. I began when I was 4 in jazz, tap, and ballet. My love for dance lead me through 16 years of intense training, provincial and national completions and performances. At 14, I began training professionally in New York and Los Angeles along side world renowned dancers and choreographers.

After high school, I reached to peruse another dream ... to be an interior designer. Not just a “dolly decorator”, but an “Imagineer” who transformed people's lives within their environment. I had a much larger vision than attending our local university. I was accepted into a private accredited design school in southern California. Against many odds in life at the time, I had the “daring to dream” attitude. My mom not only gave me her full committed support, she altered her life to help me achieve my dream. She never spoke of the challenges and sacrifices to make this possible for me, but I was driven to succeed and make her proud. Drawn from my vision, desire and brief life experiences, I relentlessly pursue to do what ever it took. I graduated at the top of my class and shortly after created a successful business.

I believe my success has come from having a mind and consciousness that is open, seeing a world of possibilities, not inadequacies. Also, having the determination and discipline to create my desires. I intentionally surround myself with like-minded, influential people who have supported and inspired my growth. I have been incredibly blessed having a mother who is my teacher, mentor and best friend. As she aligned with Ron Williams and his powerful vision to create ForeverGreen, I was compelled to do the same. I saw much more than just the potential of network marketing. I saw a company that exuded integrity inside and out and was instantly attracting leaders who possessed outrageous qualities. I also saw the tangible opportunity we had to create a new paradigm of wellness physically, financially, spiritually and globally. As I immersed myself deeper, I was appalled by the status of “sick care” among our nations and the crisis we were currently facing. I felt the urgency of our mission!

I have been greatly inspired by the possibilities my generation (the youth) could create. A new generation inspires previous generations, that's how change occurs. The youth imagine something different ... something greater to be brought forth. I immediately saw ForeverGreen as the platform to share an influential message as we place it into action. One person at a time, we interpret how making small changes in your physical and financial health would bring forth new possibilities for the future. Health is kindness! Without your health, how are you capable of reaching out and inspiring others in need? How can you be responsible for maintaining a healthy financial future?

It begins by taking a stand for your health. ForeverGreen has it all. FrequenSea: the best complete nutrition known to man, ElectriFire: natural life-enhancing energy, O3World: weight management that puts you in control of your life, Pulse-8: inspired by Nobel Prize winning research to prevent and correct the #1 killer in north America, heart disease.

I stay energized by the magnitude of possibilities we continue to create. My mentor once told me, “Your fate is in your creation”. I began small, reaching out to the people in our neighborhoods and communities. I knew, my role as the “messenger” for ForeverGreen, would carry out on a much large scale touching those who are looking for what we have. I was personally affected by the health results I received from FrequenSea, specifically. It changed my life, therefore I had immense compassion for others struggling with their own health and compelled to create more success stories similar to my own.

My story ...

At nine weeks of age, following the first immunization shot, I reacted severely becoming very sick. During my first 3 years of life, doctors tried endlessly to find answers. With no valid reason or solution from western medicine, my mom began searching natural and alternative options. While often investing over a thousand dollars monthly (in the early 80's) for nutritional supplements that many professionals said “kept me alive”, sustaining my health long term another story.

*It was when I began taking FrequenSea that I experienced for the first time what “real health” felt like. My perception of health was the brief time between getting well and getting sick. FrequenSea gave me a new lease on life. I had sustained energy for the first time, motivation that inspired my passions, and emotional wellness where I was energize and excited about life. My life was no longer about fixing myself. Something as insignificant as a product, was the most significant transformation in my life. It allowed me to see beyond my world and into those who need what I once was desperately in search for. ForeverGreen provided me with a new life and by no surprise the financial benefits naturally followed. ForeverGreen is about transformation, from beginning to end.

The choice to create a healthier, more promising future for generations to come is up to us. Applying your creative power to health, financial well-being, relationships, and much more is TEAM Connections. Even though I never worked for Disney, I believe my dream of being an “Imagineer” is evident.

To inspire greatness in each person is to use the skills and talents you have been blessed with. At the end of each day, I have a great sense of accomplishment and gratitude. I have in my hands a message, products and a company that can empower you to take responsibility of your life whether it's physical, financial, mental, or spiritual.

We welcome you to align with us and our TEAM to create YOUR best future.
